North Port Quay

North Port Quay Concept is proposed to create an entirely new, environmentally sustainable coastal location and become the world's first carbon-free development.

It would occupy 345ha of degraded, reclaimed seabed on which six island villages would be created, easing the pressure on residential markets.

More than half the development would be set aside for public amenities or public open space.

Please join us to hear Chris Carman, Managing Director of Benchmark Projects discuss the projects urban design principals including some of the projects sustainable and transport initiatives followed by a barbeque and a drink or two...

All are welcome
